

STUDY WITH US

Taught by leading clinical specialists, academics and research experts in the relevant field, our courses include:

- Clinical Nursing and Advanced Nursing Practice
- Cancer and Haematology Nursing
- Emergency Nursing
- Intensive Care Nursing
- Mental Health Nursing
- Nurse Practitioner*
- Primary Health Care Nursing

“Our cancer and haematology nursing courses help nurses to develop the knowledge, skills and confidence to progress their clinical career, meet the growing demand for advanced practitioners, and improve outcomes for patients.”

Shannon Philp
Nurse practitioner
Coordinator, Cancer and Haematology Nursing

* Only available at master’s level (2 years full time or 3 years part time)

sydney.edu.au

The University of Sydney

CRICOS 00026A

19/8090

FIND OUT MORE

sydney.edu.au/medicine-health/postgraduate-nursing

Admission criteria and closing dates can vary. For up-to-date information, search for your desired course at sydney.edu.au/courses

Produced by Marketing and Communications, the University of Sydney, July 2019. The University reserves the right to make alterations to any information contained within this publication without notice.

Advance your career
sydney.edu.au

POSTGRADUATE
EDUCATION FOR NURSES

ADVANCE YOUR CAREER AND IMPROVE PATIENT OUTCOMES

With a range of highly regarded undergraduate and postgraduate programs, the University of Sydney Susan Wakil School of Nursing and Midwifery drives nursing and midwifery education at local and international levels.

Our postgraduate courses for nurses are designed by clinical and academic experts to foster excellence within the profession, enabling you to take your career to the next level while improving patient outcomes.

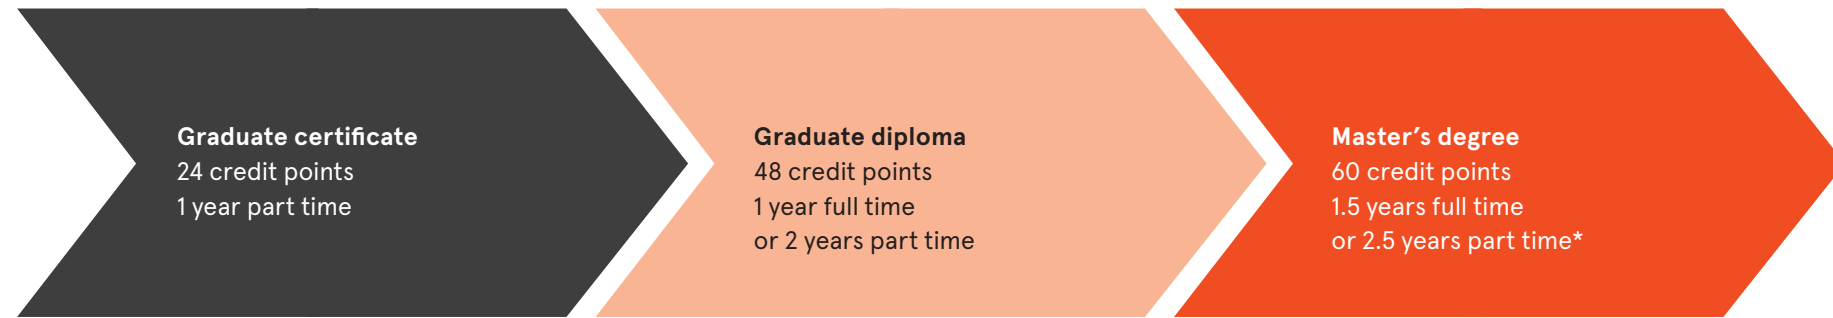

Building on the knowledge you've gained throughout your nursing career, our courses enable you to incorporate the latest evidence in your clinical decision-making, and gain the skills and confidence to work as a leader in a range of healthcare settings.

Our courses bring together students from a wide range of backgrounds from across Australia and internationally, to share their diverse nursing experiences in a rich and dynamic learning environment.

“Our suite of intensive care nursing courses is designed to consolidate your critical care expertise and develop your capacity for clinical leadership and advanced nursing practice in a dynamic healthcare environment.”

Associate Professor Janice Gullick
Coordinator, Intensive Care Nursing

* The Master of Nursing (Nurse Practitioner) is 2 years full time or 3 years part time

Flexible study options

Our courses are designed to fit around your work and your life. Delivered primarily online with short, face-to-face teaching blocks, they combine the flexibility of online learning with the benefits of in-person discussions.

You can choose to study full time or part time, and can increase, decrease or suspend your study load at any time.

You can also study at the level that suits you, with shorter graduate certificate and graduate diploma options, as well as more comprehensive master's courses available for most of our specialties. You can move between these levels of study as your needs and circumstances change (provided you meet the admission criteria).

“The mental health nursing courses assist registered nurses to strengthen their specialist knowledge and capabilities and extend their capacity for future leadership. Our courses are developed and delivered with significant input from professional and industry experts and people with lived expertise.”

Dr Andrea McCloughen
Director, Postgraduate Advanced Studies,
Coordinator, Mental Health Nursing

Scholarships and funding

A range of funding opportunities are available to our eligible postgraduate students, including University and employer scholarships, Commonwealth Supported Places, and FEE-HELP and HECS-HELP loans.

Every year, six Susan Wakil Scholarships are awarded to postgraduate nursing students starting their degrees with us. These scholarships provide assistance for study, tuition and accommodation costs.

For more information about your funding options, visit:

– sydney.edu.au/medicine-health/postgraduate-nursing

“Our primary health care nursing courses draw from public health concepts and community health nursing using a strengths-based approach. Students have found it a positive experience, pulling in all their existing skills and advancing their career.”

Dr Sue Randall
Coordinator, Primary Health Care Nursing