Call for expressions of interest (EOI):
Leadership Course – Leading self, others and teams.
October 12, 2023.

As part of our NSW Ministry of Health (MoH) collaboration, the Institute of Medical Physics at the University of Sydney has partnered with the USyd Centre for Continuing Education to run a leadership course for medical physicists. This one-day workshop will be run at the University of Sydney Centre for Continuing Education, Missenden Road, Newtown. The workshop will host a maximum of 15 participants. Topics will include:

Leading versus managing

1. Leadership traits
2. Leadership – born or made
3. Leading versus managing

Leading self

1. The role of emotional intelligence in your leadership journey
2. Self-awareness and leadership
3. Self-management and motivation

Leading others

1. Framework of influence
2. How to influence with integrity
3. Intrinsic versus extrinsic motivation

Leading teams

1. Five attributes of highly functional teams
2. Your leading style and how it affects culture
3. Setting your people and teams up for success

The cost / person will depend on the number of participants but will be no more than $650 / person.

As numbers are capped at 15, we request expressions of interest to be submitted to Sarah Alnaghy by 26 June. Your EOI should include the following details:

Name:

Place of work:

Your profession (eg ROMP or DIMP):

Number of years since certification (this workshop is not open to TEAPs unless there are exceptional circumstances which need to be fully justified):

Please confirm you are available on October 12, 2023 to attend in person and can access funds to pay registration.

If you are not available but would like to attend a future workshop, please indicate if you would prefer in-person or virtual attendance.

If we receive more than 15 EOI for suitable candidates we will select one person from each site and offer the remaining applicants an alternative date.

For further details you can find more general information here: Leadership Course: Leading Self, Others and Teams Please note the course we are offering is tailored to the medical physicist and the website provides generalised information only.
