How to Apply

Applying for a USYD–CSC Postgraduate Research Scholarship is a three-stage process. Applicants must complete all three stages, as follows:

- (1) Application for admission to a PhD at the University of Sydney
- (2) Application for a USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship
- (3) Application for support from the China Scholarship Council

Stage 1: Application for admission to a PhD at the University of Sydney

Candidates must lodge an application for admission to a PhD program, following the admission procedure:

1. Read the information for Future Students on the University of Sydney website about how to apply for a PhD:
How to apply - The University of Sydney
2. Contact a potential academic supervisor at the University of Sydney in order to discuss your research interest. You should provide information about your academic background and your research interest. This may be done by providing a CV, academic transcript and research proposal. You can search for a supervisor using Research Supervisor Connect on the University of Sydney website:
Research Supervisor Connect - The University of Sydney

Special procedures for Business and Law students:

Students applying to the Sydney Business School should contact business.pgresearch@sydney.edu.au

Students applying to the Sydney Law School should first complete an Expression of Interest: Admission to Research Programs @ Sydney Law School - Future students - The University of Sydney

3. After you have secured a supervisor and your supervisor has approved your research proposal, you can complete a Postgraduate Research Application. You can apply online by selecting your PhD program at <http://sydney.edu.au/courses/>

The average processing time for a PhD Admission Application, once received at the University of Sydney, is six to eight weeks. Some applications may take longer to process, particularly where documentation provided is insufficient. Please note, an application does not guarantee admission at the University of Sydney – applicants are competitive and will be considered based on each applicant's academic merit and the priorities of each faculty or school.

A PhD Admission Application for USYD-CSC scholarship applicants must be lodged no later than 15 December for commencement in Research Period 3 (July) the following year.

The University cannot guarantee that PhD applications lodged after 15 December will be assessed and issued with a Conditional or Unconditional Admission offer in time for USYD tuition fee scholarship consideration.

Receipt of a Conditional or Unconditional Admission Offer to a PhD program does not automatically grant you a tuition fee scholarship. You must apply to be considered for a USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship.

Stage 2: Application for a USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship

You must apply for a USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship by submitting an Online Application Form.

You can only apply for a USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship once you have received a conditional or unconditional offer of admission to a PhD at the University of Sydney (see Stage 1: Application for admission to a PhD at the University of Sydney)

You must submit your application for a USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship by 11.59pm AEST (8.59pm Beijing time), on the 8 February 2021.

An application does not guarantee a USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship – applications are competitive and will be considered based on each applicant's academic merit and the priorities of the University of Sydney. Successful applicants will receive a letter offering the USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship in March. The awarding of a USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship will be contingent upon the applicant also receiving support from the China Scholarship Council for living costs.

Stage 3: Application to the China Scholarship Council

Candidates must have the support of the China Scholarship Council (CSC) for living costs.

1. Complete a CSC Application Form and the necessary Employer Reference Form(s). These forms can be obtained from the China Scholarship Council: <http://www.csc.edu.cn/>
2. Submit your completed CSC Application Form, a copy of your completed University of Sydney PhD application and a copy of your USYD Tuition Fee Scholarship letter.

Refer to The China Scholarship Council's website for the application deadline <http://www.csc.edu.cn/>

Application Outcome

The China Scholarship Council and the University of Sydney will collaborate to identify applicants who are successful in receiving both scholarships. The University of Sydney will then issue a new Unconditional Admission Offer to successful applicants. The applicant will need to accept the new admission offer in order to receive the electronic confirmation of enrolment (eCoE) which will be required when applying for student visa.
