Directors' Statement

This year has been another active and productive year for the Sydney Institute of Criminology, with our members continuing to make significant and wide-reaching contributions to research, policy development and teaching. Our achievements highlight the Institute's ongoing leadership and impact in criminal law and criminal justice scholarship and practice and on public debate through our research activities and advocacy. In 2019, the Institute and its members strengthened collaborations and grew new partnerships in criminal justice nationally and internationally.

The Institute's year began with the commencement of our new Constitution on 1 January 2019. The Constitution, which covers membership, management and structure, serves as a firm foundation for the continuing growth and development of the Institute in the coming years.

In July 2019 we welcomed the new Head of School and Law Dean, Professor Simon Bronitt. Professor Bronitt is a distinguished criminal justice scholar and the Institute appreciates his enthusiasm and support for the Institute's activities. We thank Professor Cameron Stewart for his guidance and encouragement of the Institute during his appointment as Acting Head of School and Law Dean in the first half of 2019.

We would also like to thank our Deputy Directors, Mr Andrew Dyer and Associate Professor Garner Clancey for their commitment and active involvement in Institute activities throughout the year. In particular we thank outgoing Deputy Director, Garner Clancey for his work creating opportunities for new partnerships and collaborations. We appreciate the assistance of Institute Coordinators Ms Natalie Gouda, Ms Letitia Davy and Dr Justin Ellis, as well as Events Coordinator Ms Simran Singh and Facilities and Technical Officer Andrew Netherington, for their help in ensuring the Institute had another busy and successful year.

Following an open call for expressions of interest in the IC leadership, we are thrilled that Mr Andrew Dyer will continue on as Deputy Director into 2020, joined by Dr Carolyn McKay. Andrew and Carolyn will take on the role of Directors in 2021.

We closed the year with the wonderful news of well-deserved promotions of Institute members to Senior Lecturers - Dr Louise Boon-Kuo, Andrew Dyer and Dr Carolyn McKay. Congratulations to all!

We look forward to working with members and colleagues in criminal law and criminal justice in 2020. Best wishes for the festive season and Happy New Year.

Leadership in 2020

Professors Arlie Loughnan and Rita Shackel will continue as Co-Directors in 2020, into the final year of a 3-year directorship.

The Deputy Directors in 2020 will be Mr Andrew Dyer and Dr Carolyn McKay. Following a new model of shadowing the Directors prior to taking on the role, Andrew and Carolyn will assume the position of Directors from 2021.

Appointment of Adjunct Professor Don Weatherburn

Dr Don Weatherburn was appointed as Adjunct Professor with the University of Sydney Law School in June 2019 after announcing his resignation as Executive Director of the NSW Bureau of Crime Statistics and Research (BOCSAR), a position he has held since 1988. His appointment builds on his longstanding role as advisor and contributor to the Institute of Criminology. Dr Weatherburn was officially welcomed to the Law School and the Institute on 18 July 2019 with a presentation and lunch. Dr Weatherburn brings with him a depth of knowledge and experience, particularly when it comes to applying data and research findings to contemporary issues in the criminal justice system and the Institute looks forward to working with him on a range of challenging research issues. Dr Weatherburn said he is particularly keen to get a better understanding of the impact of methamphetamine on regional communities and said there remains much to be done on policing and crime.

Adjunct Professor Don Weatherburn

Advisory Committee

The Advisory Committee met on 9 April 2019. The meeting was attended by the following members:

- Professor Rita Shackel (Chair)
- Professor Arlie Loughnan (Co-Director)
- Associate Professor Garner Clancey (Deputy Director)
- Mr Andrew Dyer (Deputy Director)
- Professor Katherine Biber, University of Technology Sydney
- Ms Alison Churchill, Chief Executive Officer, Community Restorative Centre
- Mr Paul McKnight, Executive Director, Policy, Reform and Legislation, NSW Department of Communities and Justice
- Ms Jane Sanders, Principal Solicitor, The Shopfront Youth Legal Centre
- Professor Stephen Tomsen, Western Sydney University
- Dr Don Weatherburn, Director, NSW Bureau of Crime Statistics and Research

The Institute also thanks the following members of the Advisory Committee for their support of the Institute in 2019:

- The Honourable Justice Bathurst AC, Chief Justice of the New South Wales Supreme Court
- The Honourable Justice Bell, High Court of Australia
- The Honourable Justice R O Blanch AM QC
- Associate Professor Thalia Anthony, University of Technology Sydney
- Professor Eileen Baldry, University of New South Wales
- Emeritus Professor Davis Brown, University of New South Wales
- Professor Judy Cashmore AO, University of Sydney
- Dr Duncan Chappell, Honorary Professor, University of Sydney
- His Honour Judge Cloran, Judge of the Drug Court of New South Wales
- Mr Nicholas Cowdery AO QC, Adjunct Professor, University of Sydney
- Professor Chis Cunneen, University of technology Sydney
- His Honour Judge Dive, Senior Judge, Drug Court of New South Wales
- Professor Peter Grabosky, Australian National University
- Mr Luke Grant, Assistant Commissioner, Strategic Policy and Planning, Corrective Services NSW

- The Honourable Dr Purvis AM QC, Deputy President, Administrative Appeals Tribunal
- Professor Julie Stubbs, University of New South Wales
- His Honour Judge Woods QC, Judge of the District Court of New South Wales

The Institute particularly acknowledges the support over the years of those who are graciously stepping down from their roles as Advisory Committee members:

The Honourable Justice Bathurst AC
The Honourable Justice Bell
Professor Eileen Baldry
His Honour Judge Paul Cloran
The Honourable Justice Derek Price AM
Professor Peter Grabosky
His Honour Dr Rodney Purvis AM QC
Professor Julie Stubbs

Activities in 2019

The Institute has maintained much of its long-standing and ongoing valuable work while adjusting its philosophy, aims, and objectives in order to expand into new areas of opportunity. The principles guiding this adjustment are detailed in the Institute's Strategic Plan 2017-2021. At the beginning of the current Co-Directorship in 2018 Professors Arlie Loughnan and Rita Shackel devised a three-year vision (2018-2020) through which to sharpen the focus of the Institute's current work to meet future challenges.

In March 2019 the Institute celebrated its new partnership with Taylor and Francis for the publication of the Institute journal Current Issues in Criminal Justice (CICJ). The new arrangements enhance the reach of the Journal, and secure its publication into the future. The first issue of the Journal under the new arrangements was published in February 2019. It was a bumper issue showcasing the current breadth and depth of criminological and criminal justice research undertaking in Australia. As detailed below, four issues of the Journal were published in 2019, including a range of papers emerging from the 2018 'Queer(y)ing Justice in the Global south' conference which were published as a special issue of CICJ. It is a hugely important and timely edition. The guest editors are congratulated for their work on this. In December it was announced that CICJ has been accepted for inclusion in Scopus, with the Scopus reviewers stating that the journal 'consistently includes articles that are scientifically sound and relevant to an international academic or professional audience in this field.'

The Institute held a program of major events during 2019, including the Beyond Punishment Seminar Series, held in conjunction with the Department of Corrective Services NSW, the Paul Byrne Memorial Lecture and the Child Sexual Abuse Roundtable. The Institute continued to host research seminars and other events throughout the year to disseminate its work, engage with other scholars and the broader community, and strengthen and develop internal and external collaborations.

In accordance with the Institution's foundations in critical criminology and our commitment to teaching and learning, we continue to develop the Master of Criminology program, offering a new unit, Critical Victimology, a unit that examines various perspectives on the recognition of victims of crime as participants in the criminal justice system.

In 2019, together with the Paul Byrne family, the Institute established the Paul Byrne SC Memorial Prize for Advanced Criminal Law, to commence in 2020. The Prize is to be awarded to the most proficient student in either Advanced Criminal Law, Advanced Evidence Law or Law Honours with the focus of the student's work being in the area of criminal law, criminal justice or criminology. The Prize will honour Mr Byrne's contribution to criminal law and further the goals of the Paul Byrne Memorial Fund by fostering interest in criminal legal practice and law reform.

Over the next year the Sydney Institute of Criminology will focus on consolidating and enhancing its excellence in research, teaching and industry engagement. Specifically, the Institute will seek to build on its research profile, public education, mentoring and skill development of early career researchers, and networking with other universities and organisations locally, regionally and internationally.

Institute Meetings

The Institute continued its vibrant monthly program of internal meetings in which members and visitors met to discuss current research projects. The following presentations were delivered in 2019:

Month	Speaker	Topic
April	Associate Professor Garner Clancey (Institute)	Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Workers and Systems
May	Sarah Rahman, Centre for Education Statistics and Evaluation	The effect of a bail refusal on the likelihood of a prison sentence
June	Dr Phillip Wadds, UNSW visitor	Carnival, Safety and Sexual Violence at an Australian Music Festival
August	Emeritus Professor Joel Eigen, Franklin and Marshall College Visitor	Criminality and Science: Criminal Responsibility
September	Dr Carolyn McKay (Institute)	Ghost Criminology
October	Dr Louise Boon-Kuo (Institute)	'Race', crimmigration and the deportation of Aboriginal non-citizens
November	Associate Professor Kristy Martire, UNSW visitor	Expert Evidence: In what way are you qualified?

Institute – Law Dean Working Lunch

The Institute held a Working Lunch on 4 September 2019 to welcome the new Head of School and Law Dean, Professor Simon Bronitt. Institute members were asked to distil their core research interests into a slide in response to the question, 'What is the essence of your criminological work?' This gathering showcased the impressive breadth of interests held by Institute members and highlighted opportunities for greater collaboration.

Events and Public Education Seminars

A key objective of the Institute is to progress public education on criminal law and criminological issues by hosting a range of seminars throughout the year. In 2019, the Institute hosted several educational events, showcasing Institute research expertise and drawing visitors from around Australia and internationally.

Relaunch of Current Issues in Criminal Justice

13 March 2019

From February 2019 the Institute of Criminology partnered with world-leading academic publisher Taylor and Francis to publish its journal, Current Issues in Criminal Justice (CICJ).

The official relaunch of CICJ took place at the University of Sydney Law School on 13 March 2019. Current editor Professor Murray Lee and former editor Honorary Professor Duncan Chappell reflected on the history of the Journal.

The relaunch was an opportunity to celebrate CICJ. On the night, the contribution of Paul Byrne SC to the Journal's first issue and the ongoing support of the publication through the Paul Byrne Memorial Fund were recognised and the importance of vibrant scholarly debates was applauded.

The event was attended by current and past editors, members of the Advisory Committee, Institute members and representatives of Taylor and Francis.

Professor Arlie Loughnan chaired the event and Professor Rita Shackel led a toast to the Journal's future success.

Dr Justin Ellis proudly displays the new look CICJ, alongside Co-Director Professor Arlie Loughnan and Advisory Committee member Professor Katherine Biber.

Author meets reader event: Reasonable Doubt

30 April 2019

The Institute of Criminology hosted a seminar on the themes highlighted in the book Reasonable Doubt: Spies, Police and the Croatian Six by Hamish McDonald, in discussion with Emeritus Professor Rodney Tiffin and human rights lawyer Sebastian de Brennan.

In the book, journalist Hamish McDonald explores a 1979 investigation led by former police officer Roger Rogerson and uncovers evidence that the authorities took pains to conceal from the court: that the Crown witness was an agent of the Yugoslav secret service and had been under ASIO surveillance. This book shows how an unreformed police force, inept politicians, scheming security men, and mutually back-slapping judges contributed to Australia's biggest miscarriage of justice.

Beyond Punishment Seminar Series:

Aboriginal Women in the Criminal Justice Network

23 May 2019

Aboriginal women in the criminal justice system face distinctive problems. This seminar focused on strategies that aim to address the rising rates of incarceration of Aboriginal women and assist Aboriginal women achieve reintegration into the community upon release.

The seminar was chaired by Dr Megan Williams, Senior Lecturer and Head of the Indigenous Health Discipline at the UTS Graduate School of Health and the following panellists delivered presentations:

- Ms Kelly-Anne Stewart, Principal Advisor on Women Offenders at Corrective Services NSW
- Ms Louise Lynch, Principal Manager of the Aboriginal and Strategy Policy Unit at Corrective Services NSW
- Ms Vickie Roach, a Yuin woman and former prisoner who is an advocate for prisoners' rights and, in High Court proceedings in 2007, successfully challenged government legislation that purported to prohibit prisoners from voting in Federal elections
- Ms Gail Gray and Ms Kelly Parker of Community Restorative Centre, who discussed the Miranda Project, which provides support to women with complex needs who are at risk of being drawn into the criminal justice system
- Dr Jane Walker, who specialises in mixed methods, interdisciplinary research that influences policy and practice.

This seminar was sponsored by Corrective Services NSW and organised by IC Deputy Director, Mr Andrew Dyer. The event was particularly popular, with approximately 100 attendees.

Seminar: Where are the Italian Mafias in Italy and Abroad?

28 May 2019

Associate Professor of Criminology Francesco Calderoni, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore (Milan, Italy) has been a researcher since 2005 at Transcrime, the joint research centre on transnational crime, which has coordinated several national and international research projects funded by, among others, the Italian Ministry of Interior, the European Commission, and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime.

The seminar, co-sponsored by the Australian Institute of Criminology, examined the movement of the Italian mafias from the territories of origin in the South of Italy to other Italian regions and other countries, discussing the implications for research, as well as ideas for policies preventing and tackling the mafias in new territories.

Associate Professor Garner Clancey, Christopher Dowling (Australian Institute of Criminology) and Associate Professor Francesco Calderoni

Seminar: Criminality and Science

14 August 2019

Professor Joel Eigen

How does the growing knowledge of brain structure and behavioural capacities challenge common law notions of crime as a purposeful, intentional act? In this talk, Professor Joel Eigen examined how strides made in neuroscience and behavioural genetics confront criminal culpability under common law conceptions of responsibility.

Professor Eigen is the Charles A Dana Professor of Sociology, Emeritus, of Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pennsylvania and Principal Fellow (Honorary) of the University of Melbourne. He has most recently written Mad-doctors in the Dock: Defending the Diagnosis, 1760-1913, the final work in a trilogy examining the historical evolution of forensic psychiatry in the English courtroom.

This seminar was chaired by Professor Arlie Loughnan and attended by a number of IC members, Law School staff, students and others.

Beyond Punishment Seminar Series: Benefits of Community Based Correctional Orders

24 September 2019

Community based correctional orders are perhaps not always as well understood as they might be. This seminar considered the merits of such orders, the role of public opinion and politics in this area, and ways in which the public might be persuaded about the benefits of community correctional initiatives.

The seminar was chaired by Dr Marlee Bower and presented by two highly respected experts: Adjunct Professor Dr Don Weatherburn, formerly the Executive Director of the NSW Bureau of Crime Statistics and Research (BOCSAR), and Mr Michael Spurr, CB, Chief Executive Officer of HM Prison and Probation Service from 2010 to 2019.

Dr Weatherburn spoke about how research can be used to build public respect for Community Corrections, particularly through the publication of information concerning rehabilitation programs that are available to inmates.

Mr Spurr drew on his extensive experience in the UK to discuss probation and the balance between sensible policy, public opinion and politics.

This seminar was sponsored by Corrective Services NSW and organised by Deputy Director Mr Andrew Dyer. Approximately 60 people attended this event.

8th Annual 2019 Paul Byrne SC Memorial Lecture:
Do we Walk the Line? No time for complacency in our criminal justice system
10 October 2019

Speaker: District Court Judge Dina Yehia SC

Our criminal justice system has a strong commitment to the rule of law. We have a robust jury system, a commitment to ensuring a fair trial and a healthy preoccupation with preventing miscarriages of justice. Does that mean we can be complacent about our criminal justice system? We should recognise the good, the bad and the ugly. In some areas we have failed completely. In other areas we must remain vigilant about striking a fair balance.

Several areas of concerns within the criminal justice system were noted. The over-representation of Aboriginal and Torres-Strait Islander people – men, women and children – in the system, particularly in our prisons, represented a significant failure and a lack of commitment to the recommendations made by the Australian Law Reform Commission in its report Pathways to Justice – An Inquiry into the Incarceration Rate of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples.

The independence of the judiciary and the separation of powers should not be compromised, for example, by the fettering of judicial discretion in sentencing or by ill-informed government criticism of judicial decisions, which serve to undermine public confidence in the judicial system. A tension remains between the suppression of confidential material in proceedings and the accused's right to procedural fairness.

The skilful representation of the accused remains essential to a fair system of justice. Adequate funding of Legal Aid and Aboriginal Legal Services is crucial. Finally, despite some progress, more should be done to achieve greater gender, ethical and cultural diversity in the judiciary. This is not the time for complacency.

The lecture will be published in Current Issues in Criminal Justice in 2020.

Professor Arlie Loughnan, Judge Yehia SC and Mr Jack Byrne

Performance: High Stakes Utopia: Acting Out the Criminal Justice System

17 October 2019

Panellists Professor Murray Lee, Dr Carolyn McKay, Associate Professor Anna Eriksson and J R Brennan

Arthur and David Woods perform the parole interview in 'The Chat'

The Chat is a unique collaboration between director JR Brennan and renowned writer-performer David Woods. Ignited by JR Brennan's experience working as a parole officer in Sydney's Long Bay Gaol, the work emerged from a series of performance workshops he ran for ex-offenders. Created in collaboration with artists, ex-offenders and leading criminologists, The Chat fundamentally challenges our notions of criminal identity and asks the audience to play judge.

At the centre of the performance is a process of 'transpersonalisation' whereby the actor-facilitator, David, plays the role of the person who is being dealt with for breaching parole. The person who has been incarcerated – Arthur in this performance – plays the role of the parole officer who must determine whether parole should be revoked. By assuming each other's roles, the players are forced to perceive circumstances from a different point of view. The audience is required to consider whether sufficient insight has been demonstrated to give the parolee another chance at complying with the terms of his parole.

Joining JR Brennan in the panel discussion were Professor Murray Lee and Dr Carolyn McKay from the University of Sydney School of Law and Associate Professor of Criminology at Monash University, Anna Eriksson.

Seminar: Sentencing Law Reform in Germany: Public Opinion, Principle and the Lessons to be Drawn from Other Jurisdictions

30 October 2019

The public is becoming increasingly critical of judicial decision-making in sentencing across the globe. In her presentation, Professor Elisa Hoven from the University of Leipzig addressed sentencing law and practice in Germany. Shortcomings of the current law include the lack of judicial or legislative guidance, inconsistencies in sentencing outcomes across the country and sentences that fail to meet community expectations. To illustrate the existing gap between the views of judges on one hand and the community on the other about sentencing, Professor Hoven presented the results of three different studies she conducted in Germany.

Professor Hoven was a visitor at the University of Sydney School of Law while working on a project on the reform of sentencing law in Germany, taking into consideration the law of other countries such as the United States of America, England and Australia.

This event was chaired by Mr Andrew Dyer who hosted Professor Hoven as a Parsons Visitor to the Law School.

Professor Elisa Hoven

Professor Gloria Laycock

Seminar: Can we eliminate crime?

4 November 2019

Professor Gloria Laycock OBE is an internationally renowned expert in crime prevention, especially situational approaches which seek to design out situations which provoke crime. After working as a prison psychologist, Professor Laycock completed her PhD and began working at the Home Office where she stayed for over thirty years. She founded the Home Office Police Research Group and was the founding Director of the Jill Dando Institute of Crime Science at University College London in 2001. In this seminar, Professor Laycock drew on her extensive experience in policing and crime prevention research and practice to address the question, 'Can we eliminate crime?'

This event was co-hosted with the Australian Institute of Criminology and organised by Deputy Director Associate Professor Garner Clancy.

Child Sexual Abuse Roundtable

14 November 2019

The Institute of Criminology and the University of Sydney Law School hosted a roundtable discussion about the experiences of victims/survivors two years on from the release of the Criminal Justice Report of the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse.

Commissioner Robert Fitzgerald AM
and Professor Judy Cashmore

Craig Hughes-Cashmore, SAMSND/CEO

The purposes of the Roundtable discussion were to examine the progress achieved since the release of the Criminal Justice Report, identify areas of concern and priority, establish an ongoing communication network, and develop a shared agenda for future action. The format of the Roundtable was designed to ensure the voices of victims and survivors would directly inform the forward agenda.

The Roundtable was opened by NSW Ageing and Disability Commissioner Robert Fitzgerald AM, one of the six Commissioners on the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse. Commissioner Fitzgerald acknowledged that the event would not be taking place but for the courage of survivors who came forward to tell their stories. Child sexual abuse is not a private matter; all of society is harmed by these offences. The Royal Commission's recommendations must be 'embraced and delivered' in order to address the systemic failures of the civil and criminal justice systems in relation to child sexual abuse. Although progress has been made, survivors still face significant hurdles and feel unsupported as they navigate legal proceedings. Unless the system changes to make it easier for survivors to come forward, the Royal Commission will have failed to achieve its purposes.

Professors Judy Cashmore and Rita Shackel facilitated this event. In addition to survivors who shared their experiences of the criminal justice system, Roundtable participants included:

- representatives from government, including the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions (NSW), the NSW Police Force, the NSW Department of Justice and Communities and Victims Services
- academics from the University of Sydney School of Law (Law Dean, Professor Simon Bronitt, Adjunct Professor Nicholas Cowdery and Associate Professor Tyrone Kirchengast), the University of NSW, Griffith University and Charles Sturt University
- survivor advocates and supporters, including staff from SAMSND (Survivors and Mates Support Network) and Knowmore.

Discussions at the Roundtable yielded rich insights and will form the basis for developing a forward agenda and advancing priorities.

Seminar: Future Crime Problems and Security Solutions

25 November 2019

Paul Ekblom, Emeritus Professor of Design against Crime at the University of the Arts London, recently contributed to a course on Horizon Scanning for the Masters in Crime Science at University College London. He spent much of his career on crime prevention and policing research at the UK Home Office, followed by a decade on design against crime.

Associate Professor Garner Clancey introduces Professor Paul Ekblom

Crime is changing at an accelerating pace, and security is struggling to keep up. In this seminar, Professor Ekblom presented a range of frameworks for systematically addressing the future of crime and security. Strategies are required for governments, police and other security services, and private companies to keep on top of the threats over the medium to longer term, including:

- the capacities to detect emergent criminal threats early and respond,
- to out-innovate adaptive offenders in a world of political, economic, social, technological and environmental change, and
- to anticipate upcoming threats over a range of timescales reflecting how long it takes to develop, agree and deploy practical solutions.

This event was co-hosted with and supported by the Australian Institute of Criminology and organised by Deputy Director, Associate Professor Garner Clancey.

Seminar: Transforming legal understandings of intimate partner violence

3 December 2019

All Australian jurisdictions now recognise that self-defence can be raised in circumstances when the harm a person was defending themselves against was non-imminent. A key impetus for these reforms was the need to recognise self-defence against intimate partner violence ('IPV'). However, these reforms are not operating as intended. There is a distinct gap between the now well-developed social science understandings of IPV on the one hand, and the models of IPV that are underpinning these homicide trials.

This seminar, presented by Professor Julia Tolmie from the University of Auckland and Associate Professor Stella Tarrant from the University of Western Australia, explored how legal professionals and experts understand IPV, influencing which facts are selected and presented as relevant and the meaning that is made of those facts.

The model of IPV relied on by prosecutors, expert witnesses, judges and others can have the effect either of revealing the violence a woman claims to have acted in self-defence against, or of undercutting that claim. Current models of IPV used in the criminal justice system effectively pre-package a defendant's defensive actions in response to IPV as unreasonable. It was suggested that using social entrapment as a conceptual framework for understanding IPV provides a more accurate and complete picture of facts involving IPV and therefore a proper foundation for assessing whether a defendant was acting in self-defence.

Professor Julia Tolmie and Associate Professor Stella Tarrant

This event was co-hosted by the Institute with ANROWS (Australia's National Research Organisation for Women's Safety).

Book launch: The Palgrave Handbook on Art Crime

13 December 2019

Art crime has emerged as an area of great interest for the global community and criminologists in recent years. The Palgrave Handbook on Art Crime, edited by Honorary Professor Duncan Chappell, University of Sydney School of Law, and Dr Saskia Hufnagel, Senior Lecturer in Law, Queen Mary University London, showcases studies on art theft, fraud and forgeries, cultural heritage offences and related legal and ethical challenges. The range of interdisciplinary attention to this area is reflected in the diversity of contributors to the Handbook, with expertise in ancient history, archaeology, forensic science, heritage conservation, investigative journalism, law, law enforcement, museum curating, papyrology, physical anthropology and sociology.

The weighty collection was officially launched by Shane Simpson AM in the Institute's final event of the year. Shane is Special Counsel at Simpsons Solicitors and is one of Australia's most eminent cultural property lawyers. He is the author of 'Collections Law: Legal Issues for Australian Archives, Galleries, Libraries and Museums' and his firm advises many Commonwealth and State collecting institutions and NGOs in the cultural sector. Shane has authored many books relating to the inter-relationship of the law and cultural property. In 2011 he was appointed Member of the Order of Australia for 'service to the law and to the arts through leading roles in intellectual property and entertainment law, and as a contributor to a range of cultural organisations.'

The Law Dean, Professor Simon Bronitt, introduced the event. Co-editors Duncan Chappell and Saskia Hufnagel provided insights into the lengthy and arduous journey of producing a 900-page book with multiple chapters and authors.

Current Issues in Criminal Justice

Current Issues in Criminal Justice ('CICJ') is Australia's leading peer-reviewed journal on criminal justice with a focus on criminal law. First published in March 1989, for 30 years the Journal has informed critical debate in criminal justice issues in Australia and internationally, and continued to provide detailed analysis of local, regional and global issues from outstanding academic contributors. The Journal covers national and international issues and has subscribers from many different countries and disciplines. It features 'Contemporary Comments' which are at the cutting edge of the crime and justice debate, as well as reviews of recently released books.

As part of the ongoing contribution the journal makes to public advocacy and critical debate on criminal justice issues, CICJ is now being published in partnership with Taylor and Francis. Their support has enhanced the Journal's position as the leading academic publication on criminal justice and criminal law in Australia and broadened the Journal's reach to a global audience.

As part of this change in publisher, the Journal's Editorial Board was reconstituted and now has a much more 'hands on' approach with reviewers, authors and the editorial process generally.

The IC would like to thank Helen Brown, Matthew Conaglen and Joellen Riley for their support in the process of securing a new publisher for CICJ and acknowledge the ongoing contribution made by Professor Murray Lee as Editor.

The Institute would like to acknowledge and thank contributors to the Journal in 2019 and all reviewers for their generous input in time and expertise.

CrimNet and Social Media

In 2019, CrimNet continued to be Australia's only criminal justice e-newsletter, a lively forum and distribution network for criminal lawyers, criminologists and criminal justice professionals, practitioners, academics and students in Australia and overseas. Over the year, 19 editions were published detailing information on the latest criminology and criminal law related research, reports, cases, conferences, events, jobs and other opportunities in Sydney and beyond to over 2,120 subscribers.

The Institute also continues to grow its large social media following with 1,165 followers on Facebook, 3,384 followers on Twitter and 274 connections on LinkedIn.

Delivery of Criminology Program

HDR Students

The postgraduate criminology program at the University of Sydney Law School remains among the largest and most respected in Australia. The Law School offers both a Master of Criminology and a Graduate Diploma in Criminology. Postgraduate criminology has a long history at the University of Sydney. While the programs are well established, they are also innovative and unique. The program attracts a wide range of professional and occupational groups including lawyers, social workers, psychologists, psychiatrists, probation and parole officers, police, youth workers, correctional officers, those engaged in research and policy work in the public sector. There were approximately 359 enrolments in the units offered in Master of Criminology in 2019.

The Master of Criminology and Graduate Diploma programs included the following core subjects:

- Crime Research and Policy
- Explaining Crime

The following elective units were offered:

- Anti-Terrorism Law
- Crime and Media
- Criminal Justice Internship
- Criminal Justice: Prevention and Control
- Criminal Law: History and Theory
- Criminology Research Project A
- Criminology Research Project B
- Critical Victimology
- Death Law
- Discretion in Criminal Justice
- Environmental Criminology: Space and Place
- Forensic Psychology
- Gender, Violence and the Criminal Law

- Hate Crime
- International and Comparative Criminal Justice
- Mental Illness: Law and Policy

PhD Completion: Dr Justin Ellis

Dr Justin Ellis was awarded his PhD in criminology from the Sydney Law School in June 2019. His thesis, 'Dealing with the Digital: Social Media, Police Legitimacy and the 2013 Sydney Gay and Lesbian Mardi Gras Festival' is a timely and original contribution to research into socio-legal studies and the intersection of policing, digital and queer criminology. Dr Ellis is particularly interested in the impact of digital media on public discourse and how this is affecting institutional and individual accountability of public institutions, with a current focus on policing. Dr Ellis's research was published in 2019 in the special issue of Current Issues in Criminal Justice on Queer Criminology, for which he was also a guest co-editor.

Dr Ellis has taken up an ongoing lectureship in criminology at the University of Newcastle. The Institute congratulates Dr Ellis on his achievements and is delighted to retain him as member.

Honours Students

Professor David Hamer supervised Alison Ching-Yee Lee for her Honours thesis 'Fresh Evidence Under the Double Jeopardy Exceptions.'

Jacqueline Krynda, who completed an Honours thesis in 2018 under the supervision of Professor Rita Shackel, won the University of Sydney's David Burnett Scholarship in Social Justice in June 2019. Jacqueline will also receive a National Council of Women of NSW Australia Day award in January 2020.

Congratulations to Alison and Jacqueline on their achievements.

Student Sponsorship

The Institute of Criminology sponsored two students to participate in the international Cyber 9/12 Strategy Challenge in Canberra on 10-11 September 2019: Charlotte, a Master of Criminology student, and Adnan, a Master of Commerce and Information Technology student.

The competition has been designed to provide student competitors across varied disciplines a deeper understanding of the strategy challenges associated with cyber security, crisis and conflict. Participants are presented with a variety of scenarios ranging from news reports, technical reports, intelligence reports and social media feeds and each team is required to develop a joint understanding of the problem, develop options and then present their suggested solution in an oral presentation to judging panels. The University of Sydney team's placement in the top six was a great achievement.

Internships

Students of the University of Sydney continued to undertake internships with the Institute at four intervals throughout the academic year: semesters 1 and 2 and the summer and winter programs.

Eight interns participated in the Institute's Internship program in 2019. The interns worked on a range of projects covering topics such as sexual assault, indigenous people in the criminal justice system, juvenile justice, migrant policing, prisoners' access to legal services and miscarriages of justice, as well as assistance with the editing of Current Issues in Criminal Justice. The program provided interns with opportunities to develop a wide range of professional, inter-personal and disciplinary skills including research and communication, while also creating networks with Institute staff and external collaborators.

Semester 1 2019:

- Jessica Arman, supervised by Dr Carolyn McKay and Dr Louise Boon-Kuo on audio-visual link case law and migrant policing
- Megan Grimley conducted research for Dr Tanya Mitchell on Battered Women's Syndrome, and indigenous issues, conducted research for Associate Professor Garner Clancey and Brenda Lin on civil legal needs of prisoners, and edited a Juvenile Justice report.

Winter 2019:

- Emma Clark, supervised by Professor Gail Mason on a project examining sexual assault law and community education
- Yin Yi Lim, supervised by Dr Louise Boon-Kuo on a project concerning migrant policing and police powers
- Diana Reid, supervised by Professor Rita Shackel on a project concerning women defendants and strategic review of the Institute website
- Julia Saab, supervised by Professor Murray Lee on legal publishing and editorship of Current Issues in Criminal Justice.

Semester 2 2019:

- Ashwin Utamchandani, supervised by Dr Marlee Bower on a collaborative project between Corrective Services NSW and the Matilda Centre for Research into Substance Abuse and Mental Health
- Pamela Demi Vassil, supervised by Professor David Hamer on the Innocence Project.

Awards

In June 2019, Adjunct Professor Nicholas Cowdery QC, already a Member of the Order of Australia (AM), was appointed an Officer of the Order of Australia (AO) in recognition of his distinguished service to the law, the protection of human rights, professional legal bodies and the community.

In November 2019 Honorary Professor Duncan Chappell was awarded Teacher of the Year by the Sydney University Postgraduate Representative Association ('SUPRA') for the postgraduate intensive course, 'Mental Illness: Law and Policy'.

Professor Duncan Chappell receiving his SUPRA award (above); Professor Gail Mason (right), recipient of the Australian and New Zealand Society of Criminology Distinguished 2019 Criminologist Award

In December 2019 Professor Gail Mason was presented the Distinguished Criminologist Award by the Australian and New Zealand Society of Criminology (ANZSOC) in recognition of her lifetime contribution to criminology. This award is presented each year to an individual who, in the opinion of the judges, has demonstrated outstanding, significant and sustained contribution to Australian and/or New Zealand criminology in one or more of the following areas: teaching and scholarship, advancing international appreciation of criminology through research and publications and/or involvement in criminology in public life, including the work of the Society.

Dr Carolyn McKay was also recognised by ANZSOC this year, receiving an honourable mention in the Christine M. Adler Book Award category for her book The Pixilated Prisoner.

Congratulations to all for these well-deserved honours.
