Report

In a citation read by the Vice-Chancellor, Professor Don McNicol, Mr Jennings was described as an administrator of rare quality, esteemed by his colleagues in both the administrative and academic spheres of the University.

'He has contributed profoundly to University educational concerns in teaching, research and scholarship,' said Professor McNicol. 'He is renowned for his command of detail, for his capacity to identify problems and to solve them, for his ready wit, for his courage, for his warm concern for everyone who works with him.'

Mr Jennings retired from Sydney in 1993 and now holds the position of Registrar at the University of Western Sydney.
