The commercialisation journey

You and the University of Sydney have a common goal: to bring your academic research to the market to benefit society. To do this, there are a series of steps and milestones that are on the journey to commercialisation.

