

Severe weather warning extended

2 March 2022

Dear students,

The severe weather warning for most of NSW's east coast including Greater Sydney has been extended for tonight and into tomorrow, Thursday 3 March. Given recently updated advice from the Bureau of Meteorology about the potential impact of these conditions, some classes may be conducted remotely. We expect to resume normal operations by Friday.

Please continue to check Canvas for any changes to your class locations. If you need to come to campus, please take care. Please contact 1800 SYD HLP (1800 793 457) if you are in any difficulty or notice any flooding or damage to University property.

No student will be penalised due to disruptions caused by this weather event. The safety of our staff and students remains our highest priority. Please see the University website for information about academic and wellbeing support available to you.

Warm regards,
Stephen
