

Support following police operation on Camperdown/Darlington campus

26 April 2024

Dear students,

Some of you may be aware that earlier today some buildings at our Camperdown/Darlington campus were temporarily evacuated, including Fisher Library and the New Law Building. This precaution was part of a NSW Police operation, and the Police have informed us that they have completed their work, and these areas are now accessible as normal.

I appreciate that this may be unsettling news, given the current climate. We are committed to ensuring the safety and wellbeing of our students and staff. I encourage you to please seek support if you need it. You can connect with free and confidential support 24/7 through our student life, wellbeing and support webpage.

If you feel unsafe on campus or are concerned for someone else's safety, you can contact Protective Services on 9351 3333, 24 hours a day.

If you were due in a class impacted by the events today, the special considerations team will be in touch on Monday 29 April to provide assistance. There will be no need to apply for special considerations. Anyone else impacted should apply for special considerations.

Again, please look after each other and know that the University is here to support you.

Take care,
Annamarie
