Update on Semester 2 classes

The Vice-Chancellor has today emailed all students to provide an update on Semester 2 teaching arrangements.

- For Semester 2, 2022 the University plans to continue with the hybrid model that has seen most students returning to campus for a component of the majority of their courses, with remote options available where possible for those who require them.
- A small number of units of study will require an approval process for students to enrol in the remote option. More information will be communicated to students enrolling in these units.
- We are mindful of the ongoing challenges our offshore students face in returning to Australia and we will continue to support you with remote learning options in Semester 2, wherever possible.

Visit the Study information page for more information about Semester 2 classes.

Notices
