Week 3, Semester 2

Welcome to Week 3! We hope you're enjoying your classes and getting involved in student life on campus. In today's edition, we're excited to share what events are happening on campus as we celebrate over 100 years of welcoming international students to our University.

What you need to know this week

How to protect yourself from 'juice jacking'

Juice jacking, a technique hackers use to access your sensitive data through public USB charging ports, is on the rise. Protect yourself by charging via standard wall outlets or investing in a portable charger. Check out Insider Guides article on juice jacking to learn more.

Join us in celebrating our international student community

To mark over a century of welcoming international students to our community, we're hosting a range of events throughout Semester 2. Find out what's part of this celebration and how you can get involved.

Meet the students who developed an educational resource on generative AI

Meet the creators of 'AI in Education', an online resource designed to empower
