

Overview of the unit selection screen

This guide is designed to help you complete your unit of study selection in Sydney Student. You should plan your units before starting your enrolment.

This is a general guide and the course requirements, terms used and the order of content on the page will vary depending on your course.

It's best to add your core and/or major and/or minor units first. This will ensure you reach the minimum requirements for your course. After that you can make up the total credit points required for each semester using OLEs and/or electives.

You need to ensure that you take core and other required units from the correct collection - for example, a core unit added to an elective collection could count as an elective and not a core unit, meaning you may not be able to complete your course.

Collections available to you including majors, minors, cores, OLEs and electives are displayed in this area of the screen.
